

If you cannot view this email, see the online version here.

Dear %%First_Name%%,

A makeover of sorts

As some clients have already discovered when they attended our office, we have changed our name from My Life Financial Services to More4Life Financial Services – the reason for the name change is a company in Melbourne has the same trading name as ours. The Melbourne company trademarked the name across the whole of Australia despite only operating out of Melbourne. Whilst My Life Financial Services was an incorporated company with ASIC, holding its own Australian Financial Services licence – our legal advice has been for us to change our name! We are now in the process of trademarking More4Life Financial Services as we speak. On an optimistic note, the new name appropriately represents our core goal to empower clients to achieve More4Life - across all aspects of their lives. Whilst you will now see a new company name, nothing has changed within our financial planning practice, and it remains business as usual. Please don't hesitate to give our office a call if you have any questions on this, or any other matter.

The roller coaster in investment markets

Click here to view a webcast by Andrew Lill, Director, Investment Strategy who talks through sharemarket volatility and the benefits of a disciplined and long term approach to investing.

Kind regards,

James